WE NOMINATE

Thomas Jefferson Wertenbaker, dean of this nation's colonial historians and Edwards Professor of American History in Princeton University, who this past week was elevated to the presidency of the American Historical Association, an honor reserved for scholars and educators of the first rank. Approaching his 68th birthday and retirement from the University, Wertenbaker, a native of Charlottesville, Va., and an enthusiastic Princetonian since 1910, has devoted the most productive years of his life to helping prove that "of all the great Southern universities Princeton is located the furthest north."

Once asked by a nationally prominent football coach for assistance in teaching quarterbacks to think on their feet, Wertenbaker is one of those rare teachers endowed with almost uncanny ability to relate things academic to things of the moment and to bring the light of the past to bear upon current events. Twice in the past 16 years he has been called upon to interpret American history in European centers of learning. In 1931 he was Princeton's first exchange professor at the University of Goettingen in Germany. In 1939-40 his original appointment to England's Oxford University was nullified by complications growing out of the war, but he arranged to be at Oxford for the session of 1944-45.

Graduating in 1902 from the University of Virginia, Wertenbaker wrote editorials for the Baltimore News and taught at both Texas A. and M. and Virginia before migrating northward to "Yankee country." He became Edwards Professor in 1925 and History Departmental Chairman in 1928, a post he voluntarily relinquished in 1936. Indicative of the scope of his activities have been his eight years as a part-time editor of the New York Sun, his ever-increasing popularity as a public speaker, the receipt of His Majesty's Medal from the British Government "For Service in the Cause of Freedom."

While Wertenbaker and Virginia are inseparable and a large share of his scholarly work revolves about the Old Dominion, his historical writings cover the entire field of early American life. With the polish and charm of a Virginia gentleman of the old school, he revives on the printed page the grace and vigor of America's colonial period and distills United States history before the Civil War with the raconteur's skill that he has developed in following one of his several hobbies, story-telling.

For the recognition he has brought to all of Princeton not only as the University's official historian but also as editor of the monumental Princeton History of New Jersey; for combining unexcelled scholarship with sympathetic understanding and a delightful personality he is TOWN TOPICS' candidate for

City Manager for Princeton? " . . . The time has come . . . when this community should consider the propriety of revising our present form of local government to provide for the employment of a City Manager." This proposal was the gist of the New Year's Day address made to the Borough Council and people of Princeton by Mayor Minot C. Morgan, Jr.

If the suggestion is approved (at a special referendum), the present governing body would be replaced by a five-man commission, whose chairman would in effect be "mayor," and a full-time executive in the capacity of city manager whose pay has been estimated at $7,500.

The mayor told his listeners that the time has passed for running the community by stopping in at Borough Hall during the lunch hour and several nights a week. Strong in praise of what volunteer public servants have accomplished, he believes a manager working eight hours a day on the knotty municipal problems confronting the town is now a clear and permanent need.

First public discussion of the proposal is set to take place on the evening of February 18, when a town meeting will be held. Greater efficiency, economy and speed in execution of both routine and emergency matters are believed by Mayor Morgan to be a direct product of retention of a city manager.

COULD YOU CAPITALIZE ON OPPORTUNTIES NOW —IF You Had the Capital?

Could you profit by expanding your operations now? Would you benefit by modernizing or repairing your plant, property, store or farm? Is this the time for you to start a business of your own?

Sure, you say, but that takes money!

Well, we have money—and we're anxious to loan it for those very purposes.

A confidential discussion of your plans will receive very considerate attention here. Let's talk things over.

SUPERSTITION in this Enlightened Age

★ Do you still bury a dishrag to remove a wart on your finger? Perhaps not, but some do. Yes, even asafetida is still worn on a string about the neck to ward off illness.

These cases are extreme, but surprisingly superstitious notions about disease and treatment are held in this enlightened age.

Before you accept secondhand statements that hint of witchcraft, consult your physician. He alone is competent to evaluate methods of prevention and treatment of disease.

It's New to Us

Custom-made Suits and Coats. Here is something new in Princeton, at least to our knowledge, and well worth welcoming. At The Tailor Made Woman, 130 Nassau Street, (you have to keep your eyes peeled to find it, but don't give up—you'll be glad when you have), there is a wonderful selection of materials and plenty of designing imagination and tailoring talent to go along.

You can either take your own materials or order the lovely wools—tweeds, gabardines, flannels and pastels, some of them Forstmanns and Stroocks—made up to suit yourself. And we really mean to suit yourself, for the best is yet to come: you can go in with a pattern, a picture, a sketch or just an idea, and it will materialize into a beautiful something to wear, be it tailored or dressmaker, coat, suit, or even dress. The workmanship is expert and the details, inside and out, perfectly finished; in fact, the final results rival anything that can be turned out by a New York salon, plus the advantage of lower prices.

In the really low price bracket, there are Junior Miss ready-to-wear suits and skirts, designed especially by and for this shop. Though they are not in the same class as the custom-mades, they would be attractive additions to any wardrobe on a budget.

Electronic Metronomes. This looked like something excitingly revolutionary in the music world so we decided to check our ignorant opinion with that of an expert. From John Dielhenn, we got the following enthusiastic summary of the superiority of the "Metronoma," carried at The Music Shop:

Whereas the accuracy and construction of the old type is affected by heavy use, temperature changes and humidity, the electronic metronome is fool and weatherproof. Its speed can be varied without stopping it, and it only takes a turn of the dial to cover the range of 40 to 208 beats per minute. A Flash Baton, perfectly synchronized, can be used with or without the audible beat, which, incidentally, can range from a whisper all the way to a loud tone.

According to Mr. Dielhenn, the metronome should not be used as a teacher of rhythm but as a check on accuracy. While the "Allegro" of past compositions is variable according to individual interpretation, modern music is written with metronome marks to be played in strict accord with the intentions of the composer. For greater detail, we suggest investigation in person.

Among other highlights of his address were announcement "within the year" of revision of the traffic control system and construction of a through street to parallel Nassau. This artery will eventually extend from Bayard Lane to Snowden Lane, probably via Greenholm, Chambers Terrace, Jackson, Wiggins, Hamilton and Harold Avenue.

Retained in office were all Borough officials. To Republican James L. Briner, Jr., went the honor of election as council president. Into the sometimes tough assignment of police commissioner stepped Politics Professor J. Dayton Voorhees, while George F. Karch, senior councilman, was named fire commissioner. Other committee heads: Joseph J. Redding, finance; Michael C. Kopliner, public works; Briner, welfare; and newcomer George L. Griffing, grounds and buildings.

FACTS ABOUT THE SCHOOL

COST: $3.00 for each one-hour course, and $5.00 for each two-hour course, payable at the time of registration. This is the sole cost except that in a few courses (as noted in this circular) each member pays a small charge for the materials used.

WHEN: Ten Thursday evenings beginning January 16 and continuing weekly through March 20. There are two periods, the first from 8:00 to 9:00, the second from 9:10 to 10:10. Ten minutes is allowed for changing rooms. Two one-hour courses may be taken, if the hours do not conflict, or one of the two-hour courses which continues through both periods.

WHERE: At Princeton High School.

REGISTER EARLY: This is important for two reasons: first, enrollment in some courses is limited (as noted in this circular); second, the Committee may find it necessary for financial reasons to cancel courses for which less than twenty-four persons enroll.

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

Gallant Bess (Fri., Sat.) dishes up stereotyped melodrama and Hollywood pathos in a story about a Seabee and his equine friend. However, its pat presentation doesn't keep it from being a thrilling picture for the younger element.

It's a Wonderful Life (All Week) obviously invites the critics to comment, "It's a wonderful picture," and nicely enough it's just about that. Princeton's James Stewart is back for the first time in four years in an utterly whimsical story about a distraught building and loan operator and a guardian angel who helps him save his community from financial tragedy. With Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore.

The Garden

The Plainsman and the Lady (Fri., Sat.) portrays the dangers of establishing the pony express. An uneven plot, but considerable action and good photography.

Up in Mabel's Room (Mon., Tues., Wed.) is a re-issue of the 1944 film built on the 1925 Broadway bedroom farce about a man who has to explain to his wife why he gave another woman a monogramed set of lingerie. Fast and generally amusing.

Tars and Spars (Thurs., Fri., Sat.), as the title implies, is a routine musical with a nautical setting. Janet Blair heads the cast.
